"ScienceAdviser: Geoengineering in the sky with diamonds" (science.org). Seriously? From Yahoo News: "high levels of ultrafine particles in the atmosphere over long periods of time are significantly associated with increased non-accidental deaths, particularly from cardiovascular and respiratory diseases". Unfortunately, official air quality testing and reporting doesn't include nanoparticles, the primary particle size called for in climate engineering patents and showing up in lab test samples. Is the toxic atmospheric particle saturation also causing unquantifiable damage to our biosphere as a whole? Short answer, yes. "Scientists warn of societal collapse on Earth with worsening climate situation" (MSN). Can climate engineering and other forms of human damage to the planet be stopped in time to make a difference? All are needed in the critical battle to wake populations to what is coming, we must make every day count. Share credible data from a credible source, make your voice heard.

Denver area was unusually warm today. Started out sunny but became overcast by noon. Not regular clouds.

Poisoning the earth every day . I hope more humans start waking up very soon and understand it's more important to stop this madness than it is to go vote for some corrupt president that lies to everyone.

Coastal NJ was sprayed beyond ridiculous these past days. How do people not question it? 10:19
Makes me so upset and angry
Why won't any politician tackle this topic??

This information is available online. I really don't know why people are uninformed. The first question that came to my mind is that dust particles of one of the strongest substances on the planet would cause irreversible damage to human breathing systems
